«Boston» The ride home from Northumberland, (N.H.) was very trying. Met Mr. Benton, a Republican lawyer of Lancaster, on the train. Had heard W.L.G.'s lecture there with much satisfaction. William L. Garrison Jr. rode with the family from Lynn to West Lynn. He leaves soon for Ghent. H. C. Wright greeted the family on its return to Dix Place and said it was the hottest day of the season. The expenses of the trip averaged $10 a week for each member of the family. "Travelling is an expensive luxury."

‹Boston› Thanks O. J. for the gift of a daguerreotype of himself. Meditates on the changes due to growing older. Emphasizes "brotherly feeling" between himself and Johnson. Has returned from a vacation tour of nearly three weeks with his family in the New Hampshire mountains. Touring with a large family is an "expensive luxury." The election of A. Lincoln seems probable. "He will do nothing to offend the South."

To Samuel Joseph May

«Boston» Has been suffering from congestion of the lungs. Dr. Geist warns of danger of remaining in the lecturing field. Will be unable to attend the anniversary of the "Jerry rescue." But the participation of F. Douglass would in any event keep him from being there. Regards Douglass as "thoroughly base and selfish." Being hostile to the American Anti-Slavery Society, he misrepresented it at S. S. Foster's Political Convention in Worcester. He treated G. Thompson contemptuously in England. The Hovey Committee will distribute 5000 copies of S. J. M.'s Peace Address. S. J. M.'s tribute to Theodore Parker [illegible] in the hands of the printer. Considers Gerrit Smith's [illegible]ation for the presidency a farce. W. Goodell, in his [illegible]incipia, repudiates the nomination.

«Boston» Will be unable to attend the Convention at «Tremont» Temple called to commemorate the martyrdom of John Brown and discuss methods of abolishing Slavery. Sets forth his views and stresses three points: (1) Slavery is to be denounced without compromise, (2) No upholder of Slavery should be admitted to church membership or to a position of public trust, and (3) Immediate and unconditional emancipation. Compares John Brown with Lafayette, and his negro followers with the Revolutionary patriots. W.L.G. himself believes in the superiority of spiritual weapons.

«260 Fourth Ave. (N. Y.)» The writer reports on family business affairs. "I saw by the papers that the row was a very tame affair, looked to me like a wrestling match." Business is flourishing. "We shall lose about $16000, a flea compared to most people." An old Scotchman named George Smith, for whom the writer had invested nearly a million within the month, complimented her on her skillful purchasing; she now has the "whole control of the stock department." There is no chance of a dissolution «of the Union?» just yet. Stocks only rose ten per cent. Contrasts the former attitude of the South with the present; now, [illegible]y must sell at a loss, for they must have dollars to b[illegible]od. "I look for an insurrection within a month." Describes the health and beauty of the little boy «grandchild?» with her. The writer is beginning

.New Bedford. "Phillips is eloquent as Mirabeau, and as bold as Peter the Hermit." The writer quotes James Otis as saying that you can sooner "dam the Nile with bulrushes, than fetter the cause of freedom." The writer has never before felt more confident of success. Refers to a paper stating that 100 men were ready to go from New Bedford to defend Phillips. Willy Rotch made a fine speech before the municipal election. The colored men almost unanimously voted Republican. Tells about the large attendance at the lecture of A(ndrew) T. Foss.

To Jacob Merrill Manning

«Boston» Is ill with a fever and much confused. Acquiesces in J. M. M.'s wish to retract his promise to speak at the annual meeting of the Mass. Anti-Slavery Society, because of "delicate and embarrassing circumstances." No question of principle is involved, merely one of expediency. Pays tribute to J. M. M.'s moral courage.
Ms. copy of L. 2 p. 8 7/8 x 7 1/4 in.

Incomplete. The reason for Manning's withdrawal was possible danger to his brother-in-law in South Carolina. Cf. William Lloyd Garrison, IV, 6 note, in which this letter is quoted extensively.

To Richard Davis Webb No.44

‹Leicester, Mass.› The writer starts with an explanation of certain financial matters. Goes on to say that he was wrong when he predicted that the South would not secede. Thinks it may yet return to the Union. Says that Cobb, Secretary of the Treasury, and Floyd, Secretary of War, resigned from Lincoln's cabinet. The country believes that the Secession movement could have been stopped by a Federal seizure of the military and naval establishments of the South. Mentions the attack on the "Star of the West." Accuses Sen. William H. Soward of cowardice. Says the British consul in Charleston, S.C. has been helping the Southerners.

«Boston» Has had a succession of colds and is still weak. Refers to a clairvoyant vision of Mary Ann «Mrs. Johnson» in which a plot to assault W. Phillips was revealed. His life is in danger because of the hostility aroused against him since the John Brown meeting. W.L.G. is sure of a mobocratic outbreak at the annual meeting. Mayor Wightman refuses protection and says that in case of a disturbance, he will arrest the speakers and trustees of Tremont Temple. W. Phillips will speak at the Music Hall to Theodore Parker's congregation. Mayor Wightman refuses protection there, too. Fears that the whole country will come under the sway of the Slave power.

[(New Bedford, Mass.)] Lieutenant Paine was ordered to Fort Schuyler near New York. Benjamin R. Almy, who purchased Thomas R. Robeson's house, "one of our wealthy and most excellent citizens" died suddenly. "Our good city has been very quiet this winter - there has not been a single party to my knowledge." This is the day on which, according to report, Fort Sumter. is to be attacked. "Major (Robert) Anderson has acted nobly and humanly thus far in not occasioning the loss of lives[sic]" The writer expresses the convictions of his (Quaker)faith. Is thankful to have Mr.Potter a[illegible]eacher. The writer regrets that Garrison is so feeble. An E[illegible]man who heard (Wendell) Phillips a few weeks ago pro[illegible]ced him the greatest orator he ever heard.

«Boston» Regrets that O. J. cannot be at the Framingham Grove tomorrow. The financial prospects of the American Anti-Slavery Society are poor. Mrs. M. W. Chapman has given up the idea of holding an Anti-Slavery Festival, which, like the Anti-Slavery Fairs preceding it, was the main source of support, especially for the National Anti-Slavery Standard. She believes that friends abroad, who contributed nearly half of the income obtained from fairs and festivals, are now "muddled about the war here." Nevertheless a vigorous effort will be made on behalf of the Standard. Appeals are to be sent out shortly.

To "My Dear Friend" (Anne Warren Weston)

(Greenfield, Kilgobbin, Co.Dublin) The writer wonders at the "unreserved exultation on the part of many out and out friends of nonresistance among the abolitionists at the opening of a long and bloody struggle." Thinks that "there was no sufficient provocation for the outbursts of anger in the United States at the neutral position of England... since the struggle on the part of the free states has never yet taken the aspect of an antislavery struggle on the part either of the government or the people." Nevertheless the writer believes that the great majority of people who had any opinion are in favor of the free states. The cotton interest is powerful. A strong feeling prevails i[illegible]land that American newspaper editors are bound to pick [illegible]arrel with her. The writer does not wonder at this, as so large a portion of the American population are Irish who hate England. Gives the opinion of

«New Bedford» The writer is saddened by news of Lucia (Weston)'s sudden illness, after having hoped that she was recovering. The writer's health has been affected by the heat as well as by the "intense excitement about our national affairs." Praises the sermons of Mr.Potter: "like Richard Coeur de Lion, he wields...the weighty battle axe of the Almighty..". In Potter's absence, (Moncure Daniel?) Conway preached here; "our army passed through his father's garden," and from his knowledge of the country "he thought our troops would be beaten unless the enemy were attacked by Patterson & McLellan«sic» on the flank - his predicti[illegible]s 'fortunately' proved true" — "fortunately," the write[illegible]lains, because "it will arouse up our nature more to the true cause of the war viz. slavery, than if we had been victorious." Relates young Horatio Durfee's battle experiences, also the heroic rescue action of Luther Bent at the battle of Great Bethel. Gives the life history of Major Maggi, a noble Italian exile, who came to America with Garibaldi. Maggi and Edward L. Peirce had charge of the colored fugitives at Fortress Monroe. The fugitives did more work because they were sober, "while the whites were sometimes beastly intoxicated." Another Italian, Luigi Contri, has also come to fight against slavery.

through the battle of Bull Run, but is missing, believed to be a prisoner at Manassas Junction. Mr.(John) Jay has delivered a 4th of July oration on "The great conspiracy & England's neutrality." He does not, however, accuse England of seeking to break up the United States, as Wendell Phillips does. Criticizes Wendell's policy as silly. Dr. (Amos) Farnsworth is dead at the age of 72. The writer discusses the financial need of the (American) A.S. Society. Dwells on the difference of the present time from the past. Contrasts the attitudes of Phillips and Pillsbury with Garrison's. «(Dublin, Ireland)» The writer says Samuel May agrees that the course of the British government is right, but that he expects England to sympathize with "the various incidents of an antislavery tendency." These, the writer thinks, can be known only to readers of anti-slavery papers. Nine tenths of the American visitors to England are "either openly pro-slavery or apologists for the system." The writer enumerates reasons for lack of sympathy with the North. There is a large wealthy class of merchants and manufacturers to whom the supply of cotton is "as the breath of life." The majority of the English middle class are averse to slavery. The general view is sceptical of an "army of volunteers imperfectly officered." The writer expresses admirat[illegible]r Harriet Martineau. The Life of John Brown, compiled [illegible]s writer and his wife, has just been published.

‹Boston› Accepts invitation to visit O. J. ‹S.› May Jr. returned from New York today. W.L.G. remarks on the consonance of views between O. J. and himself and pays tribute to O.J.'s common sense and disinterestedness. Comments on the "pro-slavery venom" remaining in the North, with reference to John C. Fremont and Charles Sumner. Names newspapers whose support of the government is "basest dissimulation." They would prefer Jefferson and Slavery to Abolition by the Republicans. Lincoln shapes his policy to suit their wishes. He is "only a dwarf in mind." E. H. Heywood has been sick at W.L.G.'s house for the last three weeks. F. Jackson has recovered his health. Sends friendly m[illegible]e to Theodore Tilton.

[New York] Describes dismal train ride in rain and heat. Was warmly welcomed by Mr. & Mrs. O. Johnson. Went to Brooklyn with Johnson and W. [P. Garrison] to hear H. W. Beecher preach. His sermon was a racy discourse on conscience. J. M. Forbes of Milton and Mrs. F. G. Shaw of Staten Island were in the congregation. W.L.G. shook hands with old Dr. Lyman Beecher, now in "a state of second childhood"; spoke with H. W. Beecher and was warmly greeted by T. Tilton and wife. Had tea last evening with Alice and Phoebe Carey. Horace Greeley was present and the peace question was discussed. Attended G. B. Cheever's church. His discourse on the Constitution was "wonderfully absurd." [illegible] Goodell "enjoyed it to the brim."

His speech was listened to "with gratifying interest." Was followed by Thomas F. Curtis, a materialist, who linked Slavery with Calvinistic doctrine. W.L.G. showed him the "utter absurdity" of this idea. Other speakers were Anna E. Dickinson and J. A. Dugdale. Tells of a visit to Bayard Taylor and his German wife. To "My dear Friend" «Anne Warren Weston?»

«Dublin (Ireland)» Thanks the addressee for the portrait of Azeglio. Hesitates to discuss the controversial American question. A large majority of travelled Americans "do their best... to inculcate views favorable to slavery..." Since the war is evidently for the maintenance of the Union, and not for the abolition of slavery, it is expecting too much to look for English sympathy. "John Bull should regard the probable termination of the Union with some complacency," since, instead of one powerful opponent, there will be two nations. The writer defends himself against the charge of narrowness by telling that Mrs.Chapman wrote she wished Harriet Martineau "was the editor of the Standard and that I was the European correspondent." The writer holds the addressee's "dear sweet sister" (Lucia Weston) in loving memo[illegible]

He is becoming a very good violin player. The writer gives news of a number of friends, including those serving in the war. "Thus you will see that the descendants of Quakers are not all Quakers." Mr. (John F.) Emerson has left the high school and gone to Boston. The writer's friend Maggi, now Lieut.-Col. of 21st regiment, "has nobly refused to return a fugitive, who was pursued by his mast[illegible] Dr.Duval into the lines..." His Colonel Morse is a slave-c[illegible]r, and Maggi has written Governor Andrews about it. To Oliver Johnson No.22

«Boston» Will come to New York to deliver an address at the Cooper Institute. Wishes Theodore Tilton success in his appearance at the Institute. Praises E. H. Heywood's lecture on "Common Sense." Was amazed at the way W. Phillips corrected and revised the speech he delivered in N.Y. Gerrit Smith and Charles Sumner write "in discouraging tones as to the prospects before us. The Administration has neither pluck nor definite purpose."

To "My dear Friend"«Caroline Weston?»

«Dublin (Ireland)» Defends the British attitude toward the Civil War. The writer thinks that the addressee has "not sufficient grounds for forming a reliable estimate." Her intercourse has been with "the aristocratic & upper commercial class who have been most exposed to evil «pro-slavery» influence." Pro-slavery sympathy is provoked by the "hatred & contempt of England which American papers exhibit." The hostility to England is kept alive by popular celebrations and "self laudatory orations." The writer "can't see that the northern chance of success is likely to be greater than that of the English in 1781." Believes that the prevalent English feeling respecting the Trent affair is one of regret. Discusses the case. The writer believes that if the war had been a bona fide anti-slavery war, it would ha[illegible]lled forth a degree of en-

To Deborah Weston

New Bedford (Mass.). Gives news of the death and funeral of Mrs. Thomas Mandell, and pays tribute to her character. Not yet very strong, the writer lives very quietly. "Don't you think it would benefit you to make us a visit... It will do me good to see you - it will break up the monotony of my life..." Reports on the health and affairs of various acquaintances. Wendell Phillips's lecture was universally liked. "Will Rotch says that Wendell is the only man fit to be President in these times." Comments on Garrison's "sublime lecture" in New York. Praises Mr.Potter, the New Bedford minister, who is "as fearless & bold as G[illegible]on himself."

To Rev. Samuel May Jr. No.7

Edinburgh, Scotland. "We are not at all surprised that your government is not Anti-Slavery." Recommends that the American people urge the President to issue an emancipation proclamation. Charges the British and American press with provoking hostilities. Says the stone blockade of Charleston harbor has aroused much indignation in London. Is pleased at the peaceful termination of the Mason and Slidell incident. Mentions an article in the Times which attacked Mason and Slidell. Says there was much resentment against them in England. Thinks that the horrors of Slavery should be brought home to the English press. Tells of an a[illegible]t of the Free Church Commission to help the American pro-S[illegible]y churches.
